Caroline is looking to work with community groups that offer artistic practice to disadvantaged and vulnerable individuals. Her focus on making allows creativity to become accessible to all

As a London based multi-disciplinary fine artist Caroline is working with a variety of materials to create sculptural forms that invite the viewer to reflect on their own memories, perspectives on family life and what it means to be part of an older generation today.

Her mixed media artworks transform everyday domestic objects, often creating several identical works and using traditional casting and hand-building methods to create pieces in porcelain, clay, resin and bronze. Old family photographs and textiles are incorporated into the artwork, creating sculptural forms that reference personal memories and family bonds. Her installations offer a different perspective from which to reflect on differences.
